Field of activity:	Vikingaheimar is the home of the Viking Ship Íslendingur (the Icelander), an exact replica of the Viking Age Gokstad ship. This ship was sailed to North America by Gunnar Marel Eggertsson, who also built the ship himself over a 2 year period. The sailing of Íslendingur from Iceland to New York during the summer of 2000 was an official millennium project of the Icelandic government. According to the Icelandic sagas, Leif Eiríksson and Bjarni Herjólfsson discovered North America in exactly 1000 A.
Brief presentation of product and specialization:	Vikingaheimar also houses the permanent exhibition Journey of Discovery. This exhibition highlights the historic accuracy of the Icelandic tales; archaeological finds have now confirmed that the Vikings were in North America 500 years before Columbus. Based on an exhibition produced by the Smithsonian Institution, it follows the Viking expansion across the North Atlantic from Norway, the British Isles, to Iceland, Greenland, and to North America.
Development focus:	The temporary exhibition on the first floor gives an overview of the exploits of Vikings in Scandinavia, and the rich Viking ship burial tradition, with artefacts on loan from several Scandinavian museums.
Additional comments:	Vikingaheimar is located only 5 minutes from the International Airport, in the nearby coastal town of Reykjanesbær. It includes an outdoor area and the spectacular main building, with views of the bay. Light refreshments are available on site. And for visitors who also wish to enjoy the Blue Lagoon, a discount ticket is available for both facilities. Come spend a day, or two, on the Reyjanes Peninsula!
